

Finger Rocket Games

Shoot'Em Up

Line up plastic bottles, cups, or boxes along a table or fence. Using Finger Rockets the players shoot them down.

Variation: Use rubber animals.

Variation: Using the Spot Markers, suspend by putting a duct tape "tab" with a hole in it, and run fishing line or string through the hole to hang.

Moving Target

Players must shoot Finger Rockets through Hula Hoops. This can be played in teams, or individuals against each other. The Hula Hoops are held by staff members and moved around, the speed of the movement dependant on the age of the players. We recommend the staff members wear safety glasses.

War

Grab all the Finger Rockets you have and a bunch of people and go crazy. Most games degenerate to this anyway!

Obstacle Course

Split your group into 2 teams. Have some sort of obstacle course and each team must run through it with the least amount of people being hit by the other teams Finger Rockets.

Variations: Have a certain time frame and the team runs through as many times as they can with points awarded for those who don't get hit each time.

Battleship

This is dodgeball but each team has to have a 3-man battleship (3 people all linked together and can't separate). The rest of the people on the team try to protect them and shoot the other teams ship. Once a person on the ship is hit they are out and the ship is just 2 people. Once one of them gets hit, it's down to 1, and when they are hit the other team can brag: "We sunk your battleship!"

Laser Dodge Rocket

Play laser dodge rocket in the dark. Get some glo-sticks from Oriental Trading Co, and about 20 minutes before the event crack them and scotch tape 3 to the rocket near the tip. Rules are like normal dodgeball but require the honesty factor when getting hit

Old Favorites Buckets style

Take any normal game and add Finger Rockets instead of the ball!

Finger Rocket tag

Use a fog machine, strobe lights, cardboard obstacles, and music. Tape the Finger Rockets with white athletic tape (www.Buckets-O-Fun.com, not all white tape glows) to look like tracer bullets. (Plastic goggles may be a good idea for this one!)

Finger Rocket Baseball

Keep the hot dogs & apple pie, but get rid of the bat and ball.

Finger Rocket Bowling

Use 10 2 liter pop bottles with 1" water in each. It can be played on the floor or a long table. Place in a triangle formation and bring out the Fred Flintstone moves!

Finger Rocket Dodge Ball

No balls, just lots of Rockets flying everywhere. Team members who have been hit can be used as shields. Rotate players in after so many hits on the other team. Make up your own rules and tell us about them.

Beach Ball Boogie

Throw a beach ball in the air and try to keep it up by shooting with Finger Rockets. Play in teams, or individuals. Can also use a balloon.

Rocket Skeet Chicken

Rubber chickens are a lot of fun, but they are more fun flying through the air! One person with a Finger Rocket yells "PULL!" and someone else throws the chicken in the air and they shoot it. Easy enough? We'll see! Watch out, this one can be addicting.

Planets

Make planets out of hoops, or other circular objects. Have them in various sizes to change the challenge factor. Participants shoot Finger Rockets through the planets and receive prizes based on their success.

These are just ideas to get you started. Send us your game ideas and you may be published in our next idea sheet.
